

We stand no more." It was not, H. D. Flood.

Who was it that helped in every way to make our boys as comfortable as possible while at home and overseas?

Again I say Hon. H. D. Flood. And again, who is it that is always ready to do what is right and reasonable to help the farmer?

Hon. H. D. Flood. Appomattox county is to be congratulated and our congressional district is to be envied by every other district in the Union, when it comes to the man of ability, eloquence and political experience.

And again we insist that we have the second George Washington—first in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen.

All hats off to Hon. H. D. Flood. And now to it that Appomattox county—the playground of the States—furnishes the next Democratic nominee for the Presidency.

Old Gondola

After a long absence I will come again.

I am glad to say this is Easter, the glad day on which our Savior rose from the dead—a day we should never forget.

And if we will only hold our faithful to the end, we shall arise from this earthly home to that better world on high.

Rev. J. J. Spencer filed his usual appointment at Union on Sunday.

Mr. John Allen has moved to the mill, known as Spencer's old mill.

Mr. A. A. Austin lost a nice mule a while back by death.

Mrs. T. S. Woodson was the guest of Mrs. Mary Austin on Tuesday.

Miss Mattie Robertson was the guest of Mesdames A. A. Austin and A. H. Mann on Friday.

The Union school, taught by Miss Robertson, will close this week, after which our teacher will hasten to the bedside of her mother, Mrs. Will Robertson, near Andersonville.

We are always on the lookout for forest fires, as we have had four start near us this spring.

We are looking forward to the time when our loved ones can join the home band, and we can see them face to face once more.

With the best of wishes to our Editor and all the readers of the T-V.

Vera

First of all, we hope every one spent a pleasant Easter. The ladies could sport their Easter dresses, as the day was very warm.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Abbitt were the Sunday guests of Mr. Thomas Harvey.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Charnault spent the week-end at the home of Mr. Peter Charnault.

Mr. Lester R. Harvey and father, W. C. Harvey, visited the latter's sister, Mrs. Lily Gilliam, last week.

Mr. R. E. Morris, of Andersonville, spent the Easter holidays at the home of his cousin, Mrs. C. E. Lewis, in Appomattox.

Mrs. C. E. Lewis is improving after a week's illness. We hope for her a speedy recovery.

Miss Helen Covington has returned from Brookline, where she attended the marriage of her cousin, Miss Maude Davidson.

Mrs. Lily Gilliam spent Sunday at the home of her brother, Mr. Thomas Harvey.

Messrs. H. W. Ferguson and O. P. Rowley were visiting in Prospect neighborhood Saturday and Sunday.

Cub Creek

The farmers are quite busy preparing for a crop.

Some of our ladies have planted gardens; naps the frost won't get them.

Mrs. Tommie Tolley who has been right sick, is up.

Mrs. H. F. Martin and little boys are improving.

Mrs. Ella Childers, of Lynchburg, spent Easter with her sister, Mrs. Walter Paulest.

Mr. Ernest Robertson, of Lynchburg, spent Easter with his cousin, Mr. Joe Paulest.

Our schools will soon close.

and our children are betting on a big time the last day.

Mr. Z. P. Hilton wears a broad smile. It's a boy.

Mrs. W. W. Woodruffe spent a few days last week with her mother, Mrs. Clark, of Lynchburg.

We are glad to note that Mrs. Edie Warner is improving.

On The James

In looking over your paper today I was reminded that I was once a regular correspondent of the Appomattox and Buckingham Times—as it was called in those days. I remember how anxious I would be to see if my letter had been published.

So many changes since then I like to look back on those good old days and wish I could live the day over again. That we can only do in our imagination. In a few more years we have passed on to the Great Beyond.

We had ideal weather for Easter Sunday and so many took advantage of it to visit friends and loved ones.

Warren Jamerson, one of our soldier boys, had the honor of spending Easter with his loved ones. He was seriously wounded in France, and but for the very best medical attention would have lost a limb. He has been at the base hospital at Camp Lee for several weeks. He is looking fine, although on crutches. He said: "I am hurrying all I can to get to my mother." How proud those mothers must be who had noble sons that were willing to go and defend our country.

Dillard Phelps, another of our boys, came home last week, looking fine. Said he was only in one drive and came out with a scratch. Said he would not take thousands of dollars for what he had seen.

Mr. A. P. White, who spent the winter at the Home and Retreat, Lynchburg, is at home again; seems to be improving nicely.

Mike

The farmers are busy preparing land to plant corn. Mr. Moody Martin expects to plant his this week—the first in this neighborhood.

We hear much complaint about flies eating the tobacco plants. Several around here have had to sow the second time.

Mr. T. A. Canada and family spent Easter with his mother and father at Crystal Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Cawthorn spent Sunday with Mr. Moody Martin.

A fine daughter has arrived at the home of Mr. A. P. Lee.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Willison visited at the home of Mr. Herman Lee on Friday.

Mr. W. L. Ford and wife visited their sister, Mrs. Gantner, near Norma on Saturday.

Mrs. Sallie Cawthorn visited Mrs. Ed. Foster, near Morris Church, on Sunday.

Mr. Pats Ford had the misfortune to have a new set of buggy harness stolen out of his buggy house last week.

T. B. Joy and wife and Mrs. Rita Tibbs and son Willard motored to Brookline Saturday.

Westley Chapel

The after-effects of flu has had our neighborhood in a grip for some time. Those sick at present are Mesdames S. J. and J. R. Lee, and J. C. Martin.

Mr. S. J. Lee has been suffering for some time from a very bad sore on one hand, which Doctor Robertson is treating.

Mrs. Ella Woodruffe went to see her mother Sunday, who is quite sick.

Our hearts have been made glad this past week by the return of several of our boys from France; we have deep sympathy with those loved ones who are left on foreign soil, and we rejoice with those who rejoice in the return of their boys.

Mrs. Ella Childers, of Lynchburg, spent Easter with her sister, Mrs. Walter Paulest.

Mr. Ernest Robertson, of Lynchburg, spent Easter with his cousin, Mr. Joe Paulest.

Our schools will soon close.

freed death many times for the sake of democracy, which they understand it, mean equal rights to all; but some of them are inclined to be skeptical about the equal rights part. Well, the Good Book tells us there shall be wars and rumors of war; and to us who can understand the words, and not the hidden meaning, the time is not far distant when all will get equal rights before the law, by the deeds done.

Mrs. Martha Jennings, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. J. L. Lewis, has returned home. Best wishes to the Times-Virginian.

The Outlook For Tobacco Prices

There seems to be considerable uncertainty in regard to the outlook for the 1919 tobacco crop. This seems to be shared both by the producers and the dealers, as well as some of the manufacturers. There is no doubt that the tobacco industry of the world has been profoundly affected in several different ways by the war, and the present situation is one which is very perplexing and exceedingly difficult to interpret as regards supply and demand. It is stated that the pre-war requirements of countries other than the United States were about 100 million pounds of leaf tobacco, while the average export supply of these same countries was about 650 million pounds, leaving an apparent deficit to be supplied by the country of nearly 400 million pounds. The estimated supply of the 1918 United States crop is placed at about 600 million pounds. This, of course, would indicate a considerable surplus, but there is no present means of knowing to what extent the increased use of tobacco caused by the war and, apparently, European stocks of tobacco are very low. However, it seems that not much leaf tobacco is at present to be put in the available statistical data, as conditions are changing so rapidly. It is entirely possible that the European countries may recapture much more rapidly than we think, and be able to produce a large quantity of tobacco for their consumption during the next twelve months. On the other hand it is possible that a large number of growers will not be able to lay tobacco at the prevailing high prices thereby reducing the consumption. It must be remembered that whenever the price of any commodity is extremely high, consumption is automatically reduced.

It may be worth mentioning here that while the cured and tinned tobacco have been selling at very high prices, the cigarette types, which are used exclusively for domestic consumption and do not enter into foreign trade, are expected to be sold at any price, and prices now offered are less than half the price before the armistice was signed.

It is not likely that the tobacco farmer will be able to produce his crop any cheaper this year than last, in fact, the present indication is that his crop will cost him more. To begin with fertilizer is from $6 to $8 a ton higher than that used under the 1918 crop, and labor, while in some sections a little more plentiful, is costing more than it did a year ago, and is not expected to be much cheaper until the price of food products is materially reduced, which is not probable until this year's grain crops have been harvested, and by that time the bulk of the tobacco crop will be made.

The wise farmer will use every means available to inform himself of the possible demand for what he can produce, as it is a well known fact that a large surplus of any commodity may result disastrously to the producer. On the other hand, there is no harm in knowing how much tobacco trade will take at a fair profit to the producer.—E. G. Moss, in Progress Farmer.
